

FIVE WAYS FOR LEADERS TO CONNECT WITH EMPLOYEES

Leaders who are interested in improving everyone's bottom line in order to grow their business know that employees can only give you their best when they know what you want for them is the best you would give yourself. Following are some exploratory questions to create connection with your employees.

1. What is one relatable struggle you are having in your work-life balance that could be a meaningful share for your employees?

2. What is the one thing you want employees to know you care about in their personal lives and well-being?

3. What is the most generous and powerful gift you could give your employees?

4. What do you need most in your life that would make you a caring and inspiring leader?

5. When you leave, what do you want your employees to remember about you?
